Sorry I commented under the wrong docket last week.

My comment is still the same. I'm opposed to the drawdown happening prior to November.

Also, these owners should be obligated to effectively communicate this drawdown weeks or months in advance. The idea that posting this in a local newspaper is anywhere near adequate is criminal. I spent the weekend on the lake talking to people and about 50% of the people I talked to had no idea that a drawdown was happening. The people who did know had only learned about it within the last couple days. Not impressed.
